

Refund Policy

Wayfarer Travels — Flight Search & Travel Packages | Last updated: 1 September 2026

1. Overview

This Refund Policy explains how eligible refunds are calculated, processed, and paid out after a cancellation, schedule change, or other qualifying event on a Wayfarer Travels flight booking or travel package. Refund eligibility is determined first by our Cancellation Policy; this document covers what happens after a refund has been approved.

2. What Is Refundable

- The portion of a fare or package price remaining after applicable cancellation charges under our Cancellation Policy.
- Government taxes and airport fees, which are almost always refundable even on non-refundable fares (subject to a small administrative fee).
- Unused package components when a partial cancellation is approved before the service is rendered.
- The full amount paid when a booking is cancelled due to an airline/supplier-caused disruption (see Section 6 of the Cancellation Policy).

3. What Is Not Refundable

- Service fees charged at the time of cancellation.
- Non-refundable add-ons explicitly marked as such (e.g., certain event tickets, visa-processing fees already submitted, seat selection, and travel insurance premiums once the policy is issued).
- No-show bookings, where the traveler does not cancel in advance and simply misses the flight or check-in.
- Value of loyalty points, coupons, or promotional credits used toward the original booking (these may be reissued as credit instead of cash — see Section 5).

4. Refund Timelines

Payment Method	Typical Refund Processing Time
Credit / Debit Card	5 – 10 business days after approval
Digital Wallet (PayPal, etc.)	3 – 7 business days after approval
Net Banking / Bank Transfer	7 – 14 business days after approval
Airline-issued travel credit	Instant to 48 hours after approval

Processing times above begin once the refund is approved, which itself can take 3–5 business days after cancellation for us to confirm the final amount with the airline or supplier. Bank or card issuer processing times are outside our control and may add further delay.

5. Refund Method

Refunds are issued to the original form of payment wherever possible. If the original payment method is no longer valid (e.g., an expired card), we will contact you to arrange an alternative method such as bank transfer or platform credit. Where a booking was paid for partly with platform credit or a promotional coupon, that portion is typically refunded as credit rather than cash.

6. Airline & Supplier-Controlled Refunds

For flight bookings, the airline — not Wayfarer Travels — determines refund eligibility and the final amount, based on the fare rules of the ticket purchased. We submit refund requests to the airline on your behalf and pass on the outcome. For hotel and activity components of a package, refund eligibility is governed by that supplier's own policy, which is disclosed at the time of booking.

7. Disputed or Delayed Refunds

If a refund has not arrived within the timelines in Section 4, contact our support team with your booking reference and refund confirmation. Please avoid initiating a chargeback with your bank before contacting us, as this can delay resolution and may result in a temporary hold on your account while the dispute is investigated.

8. Refunds for Package Downgrades

If a supplier substitutes a lower-category hotel, seat, or service than what was booked, and the substitution is confirmed to be of lesser value, you are entitled to a partial refund of the price difference. Claims for downgrade refunds should be raised within 14 days of trip completion with supporting evidence (photos, confirmation emails, or on-site documentation).

9. How to Request a Refund Status Update

- Check real-time status under "My Bookings" → "Refund Status."
- Ask the chatbot: "What is the refund status for booking [reference number]?"
- Email support with your booking reference for a manual review if the refund is overdue.